

BY THY GRACE I LIVE!

There is only One Life.

That life is God. That life is Good.

That Life is my life now.

I surrender into this One. I breathe in this One as it breathes me. I lavish and rest in the vibration of this One. It is the blood that flows through my veins. It is the air that I breathe, the thoughts that I think, and the beating of my heart.

This One graces generously. This grace washes from me the temptation to judge myself or others. I am left fully present to the One without distractions of any kind.

My eyes see love and only love!

My ears listen to hear the inner voice of wisdom and inspiration as the manna from heaven.

By the words of my mouth, I speak words of love, acceptance and compassion.

This grace inspires me to live faithfully in principle with full conviction.

I walk my talk with each step that I take. This walk takes me along the path of self-love and self-acceptance. I shall not speak a word against myself or any sentient being.

For this grace, I am so grateful.

I trust and I allow it to be.

And so it is!
